The interview focuses on personal issues in contrast to how the world is changing in other ways. Being concerned about the environment, social-political issues are quite prominent in my head and worry about the global financial problems, global warming issues, etc. In comparison with the social issues of my generation, I feel that the world is changing in a more positive manner, such as a global political union. There are global political issues that are not as likely to occur. These things are not issues that are going to flourish, I imagine that globalization will continue.
